Dhamma Hall of DhammaLakkhana

Dhamma Lakkhaṇa, meaning 'Characteristic of Dhamma', is situated in eight acres (approximately 105,000 sq m) of land dotted with several auspicious trees such as peepal etc, in the capital of Uttar Pradesh, India's most populous city. Established in January 2003, the Centre is well-connected by air and rail, with the nearest locality being the small town of Bakshi-ka-Talab located about 15 km. from Lucknow on Lucknow - Sitapur Highway.

At present, the Centre has a Dhamma Hall for 125 students but the capacity is restricted to 32 males and 32 females due to shortage of residential quarters. All residences, male as well as female, are quipped with attached toilets. There are separate dining halls for male and female students. Dhamma Lakkhaṇa conducts about 18-20 ten-day courses each year, in addition to one or two Satipatthana courses, several 3-day courses and Anapana courses for children. The centre has its own water supply system, and back-up generator for electricity supply. Over 1000 plants have been planted to enhance the greenery.
