50th anniversary of the Return and Spread of Dhamma: A great occasion to express gratitude to our teacher Mr. Goenkaji

We have strongly resolved to celebrate the Golden Jubilee 50th anniversary of the return and the spread of Vipassana, July 3, 2018 to July 2, 2019, throughout the year. It is hoped that this will be helpful in strengthening the daily practice of all students of Goenkaji. To this end, a one-day course will be held, daily, at the Global Vipassana Pagoda throughout the year. Old Students can avail the benefits of these courses on any day. In other places also, people will celebrate this Golden Jubilee ceremony by meditating and practising Dhamma even more seriously. This will be a true expression of gratitude to respected Mr. S. N. Goenkaji.

The vignettes from the life of the world renowned Vipassana teacher Mr. Satyanarayan Goenka, from the days prior to his coming into pure Dhamma, are given here with intent that they may inspire others when they see how a person steeped in devotional fervor from a very young age could change so much. We offer this series from his autobiography--NL Part - 7

A Strange Coincidence

On the first of September 1955 I reached the International Meditation Centre for the ten-day course. In the massive, recently constructed Mahāpāsāna Gukha, or ‘Great Cave’, a short distance away on Prom road near the Kaba Aye Peace Pagoda, 2500 scholarly bhikkhus from various countries were immersed in the reciting of the Tipitaka. The sacred work of the Sixth Saṅgāyana (Dhamma Council) was underway. Until then I had no inkling, even remotely, of its historical importance, though my friend U Chan Htoon had made me a member of one of the subcommittees of this gigantic undertaking. This subcommittee was in charge of the food arrangements and I was responsible for organising the vegetarian fare. Up to this point, all I knew about this undertaking was that a large number of bhikkhus were reciting their scriptures and it would last for a few years. Making food arrangements for public events always interested me and I was happy with this task.

After completing the ten-day Vipassana course I realised the vital importance of this great work. Prior to this, five such Saṅgāyanas had been organised over the span of 2500 years under contemporary scholar bhikkhus, who established the authenticity of the Buddha’s words after examining them thoroughly and comprehensively. At present 2500 bhikkhus converging from different nations, were collectively reestablishing the authenticity of the Buddha’s words that had been maintained in their respective countries with utmost care for centuries. The words were preserved in their original language of Pali and though the scripts and pronunciations in the various countries differed from each other, there was rarely any difference in their essential meaning. These 2500 scholars from the five countries were immersed in reestablishing the authenticity of the original teachings of the Buddha once again.

This Saṅgāyana was being held at the time when the first period of 2500 hundred years of the Buddha’s teaching (sāsana) was ending, and the 2500 hundred years of the second period was beginning. As the course ended, Sayagyi U Ba Khin told me about an ancient belief that the second period of the Buddha sāsana would start with the spread of paññā. He further commented that the wisdom developed through Vipassana meditation would not only spread in Burma, but would return to its source, India, and from there spread all around the world. It was a coincidence that I received this priceless jewel in the year when the two periods of the teaching met – one ending and the other beginning. Truly a profound blessing for me.

Kālāma Sutta

When I reached the meditation centre at the start of the course, I left my belongings in the assigned room and went to pay respects to Sayagyi. There I found a small booklet and on its first page these words from the Kālāma sutta were written:

The Buddha gave the following advice to the Kālāmas:--

Do not accept anything:
• because it has been believed traditionally for generations;
• because you have heard it many times;
• because it is believed by a large number of people;
• because it is in accordance with your scriptures;
• because it seems logical;
• because it is in line with your own beliefs and thinking;
• because it is proclaimed by your teacher, who has an attractive personality and for whom you have great respect.

Accept it only after you have realized it yourself at the experiential level, and have found it to be wholesome and beneficial to one and all. Then, not only accept it but also live up to it.

(Kālāma Sutta, AN 3:65, I 188-93)
Then Sayagyi U Ba Khin told me that the visage of the Tathāgata was splendid and respectworthy. Yet he did not permit his teachings to be accepted on the basis of blind faith. Hence, he said to me, “Do not accept whatever I teach in blind faith. When you see with your own experience that it is totally beneficial, then alone accept it and carry it forth in your own life. You have come here for practising the teachings of the Buddha at the experiential level”.

My heart welled up with joy upon hearing and reading these words of my Guru and the Buddha. How do I pay enough respect to such a one as the Buddha, and a teacher like Sayagyi U Ba Khin who say to develop these teachings based on one’s own experience and accept them if they prove beneficial, and not to accept them blindly.

Until now, all the religious masters I had encountered had said to accept what they were saying in faith and devotion, and not to be hesitant or mistrusting in their words. Then enticing heavens were promised to believers, and dark hells to those who doubted them. And what was being said here? I was told not to merely accept what is taught on faith, but to experience the teachings for myself.

Hearing and reading about this essential religious truth, I felt truly blessed and made a firm resolve to unhesitatingly give it a trial at the experiential level.

The Storm and then Peace

The camp started. Guruji taught us the sādhana of Ānāpāna and I began the practice of remaining aware of the incoming and outgoing breath. My morning sitting was good. Then we assembled in the dining hall at 11 a.m. There were only a handful of students, and Sayagyi asked everyone about their practice. Every individual present there said that they saw light during their meditation. When my turn came, I mentioned that there was strong itching and some other neutral sensations below the nostrils, but no light. After lunch we all went to our respective rooms.

I became unhappy. In those days I was a very vain person. With success having quickly been achieved far beyond expectations in so many fields, the mind had become very self-centred and arrogant. Due to this, even the smallest failure or undesirable happening used to become unbearable for me and my heart would become heavy. If anyone approached me at such times, he would likely become the victim of an unreasonable outburst of mine. I preferred being left alone with my misery. Nothing felt good at such times and now was no different. I didn’t feel like going to the meditation cell.

Even when I pushed myself to go there, I could not observe even a couple of breaths. My mind simply refused to comply with the meditation instructions and my misery grew. I returned to my residence and lay down on the bed. But the agitation grew and a feeling of inferiority and failure took over as I began to contemplate on how I had become trapped: “This meditation is good and others are indeed benefiting from it, but I am not worthy of it. Other neutral sensations below the nostrils along with the breath and sensations were the important factors for us. I was now fully immersed in meditation, and with great surprise I saw lights here and there; indeed light filled the entire space. I remained firm in my resolve not to pay any attention to light, and that sensation alone was my point of focus. After some time, there was not just the presence of divine light but I could hear celestial sounds too. The sound of a huge waterfall pervaded one ear while the other ear was inundated with sweet sounds of chimes. But now even these divine sounds could not distract me. I had read a lot about divine light and primal celestial sound and always gave huge importance to them, but now I decided not to pay any attention to them. Rather I made a firm resolve that my meditation practice must only be based on sensations and I kept my focus on that. And I kept my focus on that even time I saw that, besides the light and the sound, some additional aspects of the sixth sense were becoming active, but I ignored these as well and continued giving all importance to sensations.

I was very happy when I emerged from my cell at 9 p.m. that evening. The desired feeling I had experienced in the afternoon had vanished, and there was absolutely no question of my running away. I went to this delightful place, and I was profoundly grateful to my friend U Chan Htoon who brought me to this path, who truly helped me to overcome the desire to escape which had risen in me. Had I been so foolish as to run away, I would have been deprived of this priceless jewel forever. I am also deeply grateful to my friend U Chan Htoon.

My progress surpassed all expectations. And when Vipassana was given after two days, the experience was truly extraordinary. The entire body melted into a mass of atoms, with varied movements and sensations. This inner world was totally unknown to me. That there was a constant flow of varied sensations throughout the body was something that I could have never even conceived of. I felt as if I had entered a magical land.

Vipassana was given the morning before lunch. When Sayagyi came for checking he said, “What has been received by you is invaluable. Now you must ensure that you never leave it.” He called for an assistant to bring a blanket. Covering my head and face with it, the assistant guided me from the cell to my room so that I did not get distracted by some external stimuli and thus lose this precious reality within. I was told to lie on my bed and meditate; a helper would bring my food to the room. While eating, too, I was to remain aware of these sensations, being careful not to break the continuity. I did as I was told, which was to see that the inner awareness with paññā continued in every posture – sitting, standing, walking, lying, eating and drinking.

The days passed. I remained immersed in meditation during which I came across many unusual experiences. The inert body became energised with divine light and divine powers, wavelets everywhere. The entire spinal cord turned into a mass of wavelets and hundreds of openings on the head burst into wavelets, and then from the top of the head a fountain erupted. By the end of the course it felt as if tonnes of weight had been lifted off me. I felt so light as if the gravitational pull of the earth was no more and I was ready to fly in the air.

Once during the course I did consider that all of this might be an imagination. But my teacher gave me advice on how to check whether it was reality or not, and I realised that this was neither imagination nor hypnotism. It was the inner truth. A layer of ignorance exists on the surface of the mind which does not allow us to realise the truth. With the right application of the Buddha’s beneficent teachings, this external layer was broken and a new inner world was revealed, just like a chicken before being hatched, is in ignorance of another reality.

With this outer layer covering me no more, I felt as if I was born again; just like we could say a bird is born from its mother’s womb in an egg, and then is born a second time when it hatches out of that egg. I too came out of my mother’s womb with the layer of ignorance covering me, and now this powerfully beneficent insight had helped break that layer, giving me a second birth. This second birth was my real birth.

I had not taken the sacred thread as per our Hindu traditional beliefs. This being due to my stubborn resolve of not taking it unless and until our society permitted everyone, including the lowest born, to take the sacred thread. As a result I was still considered a low birth. I was fine, indeed very happy with this state of affairs. But now, with this sādhanā, I had become twice born in the true sense of the word. After all, how does one become twice born merely by fulfilling the ritual of taking the thread? But by coming to this meditation centre and breaking the shell of ignorance, I had truly become twice born. I was blessed, immeasurably blessed.

Centuries Corpus Fund for the Operation of Global Vipassana Pagoda

As desired by Guruji, a Centuries Corpus Fund has been set up to meet the daily expenses of GVP. To fulfill this desire of Guruji, Global Vipassana Foundation (GVF) calculated that if each of 8960 persons donates Rs 1,42,694/- then the amount will be Rs 125 crores. The interest earned from this amount will meet its daily expenses. If one cannot deposit this amount at one time he can do it in installments in a year. (Some have deposited the money and it is hoped this amount will be collected soon.)

This is a great occasion for all meditators and non-meditators to increase their parami by contributing to this fund

Peaceful demises

• Sri Prundje as an architect was the prominent person in the construction of Dhammagiri and Dhammavipula. Guruji appointed him Asstt teacher in 1993 and Açèrya in 2008. He conducted several courses, helped many meditators to grow in Dhamma and brought many to the path of Dhamma. On his Dhamma tour while he was in Sri Lanka he had a heart attack. He died peacefully on Jan, 8. Mangala mettà to him from vipassana meditators.

• Sri N. Y. Lokhande, also from Mumbai was associated with vipassana right from the beginning of its introduction here. He organised many lectures of Guruji, brought many to the path of Dhamma. He was appointed Asstt teacher in 1997 and Açèrya in 2003. He served a lot of people. After an illness for some time he passed away peacefully on31st Jan. Mangala mettà to him from all meditators.

• Mr. Samarn Sirisang (AT 2007) from Thailand passed away peacefully on January 30th. Together with Mrs. Sermsong Sirisang,they had served Dhamma well as CCTS for six years and were appointed ATs in the year 2007. His death is a great loss for us. Much mettà to departed one.

• Kerry Waters, SAT from Pomona, QLDs, Australia passed away peacefully surrounded by Dhamma friends on December 23, 2018. She started meditating with Goenka in the early ’70s and was involved in Dhamma service right from the beginning. She and her husband, both from Australia, were involved in setting up non-center courses in Australia & around the world including in China. They were involved in the earliest days in Dhamma Bhumi and also Dhamma Rasm. Just two days before Kerry died she was still doing registration for Dhamma Rasm. She was a Dhamma gal just to her last breath.

DHAMMA DOHA

Anukampā ho santa kī, mukti dvāra de kholā;
Dekha anitya asaṅga ho, pāye nitya amola.
If a saint is compassionate and opens the door to liberation
Then one should observe/ experience impermanence without being attached to it and should experience priceless permanence.

Nīja anubhava se jāna le, bhale bure kā jījānā;
Karen parākrama dharma-tapa, sadhe amita kalyānā.
Know from your experience what is good and what is bad
And then by working hard and making right efforts, you will do yourself immense good.

Kadama-kadama para satya hī, abubhava hotā jāyā;
Aisā satapattha dhamma kā, manjīla taka pahuncāyā.
At every step one will experience the truth, The royal road of Dhamma is such that it will take one to the goal.

Kara len dūra kaśṭya saba, yahi jana kā dhyeya;
Durlabha jiva manuṣya kā, sādhen anupama śreya.
The goal of life is to remove all defilements, It is very rare to be born a man, therefore work hard to get the highest end of life.

The Construction of Dhammalaya 2

To give free accommodation to Dhamma Sevakas and meditators who come here for a one-day course from far-off places, Dhammalaya-2 will be constructed soon. Those who want to earn merit by contributing to the construction work should contact at above GVF address.
